Gospel Meditation

October 13th, 2024
28th Sunday in Ordinary Time

This week we hear of the man who inquires of Jesus how to obtain eternal life. He rejects Jesus' invitation to sell his goods, give to the poor, and follow Jesus. Mark tells us this devastatingly sad line, "At this saying, his countenance fell and he went away sorrowful; for he had great possessions" (Mark 10:22). The man's heart wasn't centered on Jesus, but on his possessions. Perhaps Jesus intuited this. Now, we don't know if Jesus intended to actually make him go through with it, like God's call to test Abraham's willingness to sacrifice Isaac. But sadly, in this case the willingness was not there to entrust everything to Jesus. And this made the man deeply sad.

For most of us, the literal dispossessing of our goods is not our call. But as Christians, a consistent renouncing of them is. This week, especially if you're noticing a persisting sadness, I invite you to hear Jesus calling you to acknowledge that none of your possessions are finally yours. They are God's and on loan to you. We get so addicted to that stuffy and sad word, "mine." At Mass, we rehearse this attitude of joyful detachment by giving bread, wine, and money to the Lord, as if to say, "Lord, all I have is yours." And what we get back is a sadness-defeating joy beyond all description: knowing that He is ours, and we are His.

What possessions are pre-occupying you at the moment? Write them down. Intentionally offer them to the Lord at the next Mass you attend.

— Father John Muir

From the Pastor's Desk

Last week, when the Gospel was about marriage/divorce, one of the last verses was, "let the children come to me." For those who didn't hear my homily, I preached on marriage. The 2 main points were: Moses' concession for divorce because of the "hardness of hearts" and how many wounds we all have by imperfect marriages. I encouraged all to reflect on what kind of heart they bring into the marriage. No matter how wounded our hearts are, God can help us to love more unconditionally than conditionally, God can help us forgive, and God can heal our wounded and guarded hearts if we continually offer our hearts to Him. I then shared how in marriage preparation there is a question we discuss: Should children become the primary focus and center, which tends to happen so often? The Church, in fact, says no; that marriage must come first. I shared that the children should see that their parents love each other. The love and togetherness of parents, through all the difficulties of married life, should be seen by the children. After all, seeing the love between their father and mother is the best upbringing a child can have. I am thankful there are so many occasions that I witnessed my parents hug and kiss each other in the kitchen. A week before my dad died, he had me buy flowers for my mom, something he used to do a lot - just to brighten her day, as she grew tired taking care of him.

With that homily, I didn't preach on the other part that came from my prayer because it would have been too long of a homily (contrary to what some may think, I am conscious of how long my homilies are! ) Therefore, I'll write about what came from my prayer that I wasn't able to include in my homily.

"Let the children come to me". Is that the mentality of your marriage? I am the youngest of 2 kids, my sister is 4 years older. I like to tease that "my parents stopped at perfection". Even though I tease, I also know that is not the real reason they stopped having children. Last Wednesday was my birthday. I was born 50 years ago (no jokes please. I was born 3 months early and weighed 2lbs 2oz; in a small town of Pittsburg, Kansas. The town was so small, the hospital didn't have an incubator. I had to be ambulated with my dad 2 hours to Kansas City while my mom recuperated. In the 1970s, considering the kind of birth I had, I imagine my parents were afraid of going through that again; or maybe the Doctors warned them about the risks of having more children. My parents decided then not to have any more children, and they physically made sure they wouldn't get pregnant. Although they were Catholic, we only attended Sunday Mass. They didn't really know or live their faith at the time. Once they grew and understood their faith better, they both regretted the decision. I distinctly remember 3 weeks after my dad passed, I was celebrating Mass and I heard my dad tell me "Preach on contraception. That is one sin I need to be purified from". At the time, both my parents did what they could to not get pregnant...again perhaps out of fear or following the advice of doctors. The same advice and fear happens today but a lot more often. The other day I heard a Catholic Answers podcast episode with a 16year old girl. She is Catholic but her parents are Baptist. She said that she doesn't want to take birth control, but her parents and doctor are insistent that she does. Even though she is not sexually active, it's likely recommended to regulate her periods. Even though a 16-year-old is trying to tell her parents and doctors of all the negative and unhealthy side effects of contraception, they are still insistent. Many people, even doctors, are so blind to the truth about contraception. Notice how, sharing the negative and unhealthy consequences about contraception have nothing to do with one being Catholic or not, but contraception has negative physical/mental/emotional, and not just spiritual consequences.

There are also many others who have misunderstandings on the other side. While some are insistent to use contraception (which in most cases doesn't prevent pregnancy but prevents development after conception - thus abortion), others are insistent that they have a child, no matter the cost. Whether they have a spouse or not; regardless of the reason they aren't able to get pregnant, they want what they want and will use any means necessary to get it (IVF, surrogacy, etc). Their misunderstanding though, is that having a child is a gift, not a right. Parents are co-creators with God in every conception and pregnancy. In the first reading, God created all the animals but asked Adam to name them. That name became their identity; how they were known. So Adam was, in a sense, co-creator of the animals (at least in identity, not physically). But notice who actually made all the animals. It was God! In pregnancy, the parents did not make the baby. Who gave the parents the ability to create in the first place? GOD! Thus, a child is not a right. We don't get to say I want a baby no matter what the cost. Every child is a gift.

In Christ, Fr. Chad

Accreditation Update October 2024

Annunciation has been preparing for our second accreditation visit for a year and a half. The process culminates with an onsite visit by a Visiting Committee of seven educators. The Visiting Committee has received copies of the Self-Study and Educational Improvement Plan as well as other information about the school. During the next month they will read our documents and plan for the 3-day visit, November 13-15.

On November 13, we will introduce the Visiting Committee to the student body at a school Mass, after which they will attend the monthly Catholic Identity Committee meeting. Throughout the first day, they will observe in classrooms, at lunch and recess, and at drop-off and pick-up. They will interview students, faculty, staff, the principal and our pastor. They will look at evidence to support the findings in our Self-Study. Some evidence will be "live" while other evidence is physical or digital evidence that the faculty and staff have been collecting and organizing for the past year. In the evening, the Committee will meet with the Advisory Council.

On Thursday, November 14, the Committee will continue with classroom visits and evidence review as they begin writing the Report of Findings. Friday morning, they will finalize the Report of Findings and complete their paperwork. At 1:00 on Friday afternoon the Committee will meet with the school staff and share some of the findings.

Please keep ACS and the Visiting Committee in your prayers.
